"KEEPING THE GOVERNMENT OUT OF BUSINESS"

Will Rogers, humorist, actor and shrewd commentator, recently wrote: "See where the United States Chamber of Commerce is gathered in Washington. It's the caviar of big business. Last time they met I happened to be in Washington and was the guest of Jesse Jones (head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation) at his dinner. Now the whole constitution, bylaws and secret ritual that orchid club is to 'keep the government out of business.' Well, that's all right, for every organization must have a purpose, but here was the joke: they introduced all the big financiers, as the head of this, that and the other. As each stood up, Jesse would write on the back of the menu card just what he had loaned him from the R.F.C. (I got that menu card yet). Yes, they said: 'Keep the government out of business.'"

HEAVY LOSSES FROM PREMATURE THRESHING

It is reported that farmers in some localities, despairing of the weather clearing up for a sufficient length of time to permit stacked grain to dry, have been threshing wet grain. The anxiety to get threshing over is well understood and particularly in view of the uncertain weather in Alberta autumn, but unquestionably a heavy loss will be sustained by threshing grain not in fit condition. The northern part of the province has been very unfortunatly this fall because of continuous rain and snow preventing threshing. Heavy frosts have been experienced all over the province, too. A Winnipeg statistician's estimate that 24 per cent of Alberta's crop has suffered loss from frost.

Edmonton Letter

EDMONTON, 17.—Perhaps the most important news as far as Edmonton is concerned is that concerning the success of a new method of separating the bituminous products from the McMurray tar sands, announcement of which came Saturday from Toronto. Experiments have been finally completely successful and the fact will open up a rich field of natural resources to industry. The benefit will not only accrue to Edmonton but to the whole of the province indirectly. The new process will make sufficient oil available to supply the British empire and the important fact is that it will make the empire independent of foreign supplies of crude oil. A method of treating the McMurray sands, invented by Max Ball of Denver, promises to solve the problem of separating the oil from the sands. Deposits of oil sands at the northern area covers 15,000 square miles and varies in depth from 150 to 220 feet. Analysis of samples has shown 15 to 18 per cent bituminous material.

The identity of the young woman whose body was dragged from the waters of the Saskatchewan river on Wednesday, has been secured through the publicity given the search in newspapers and over the radio. She was recognized as Marie Sklova, a demitisse, who had been working in some of the city cafe kitchens as a dishwasher for some time. She is said to have come from the Ukraine about five years ago and was 32 years old. It is thought she has a sister in Provost or Ribstone and police are trying to locate her.

It isn't often that political news gets into this ether, but just at present the capital is being flooded with stories of a political stamp, which are more or less worked up by the local press. The story about the new automobiles purchased by the provincial government seems to be spending itself for the time being and the attitude of the government, which seems to indicate their view that "silence is golden," is helping the trouble and excitement to die down quietly. But the bombardment of the members of the government have been subjected to was severe, to say the least. However, indications are that the cabinet will ignore it, although Premier Reid has announced that he is willing to have the whole question of expenditure and remuneration of cabinet ministers investigated. He said if such an investigation is made the government will gladly assist it forward.

Much interest has been aroused here by the recent announcement in the press from Ottawa that Canada has reached a tentative agreement with the United States to permit commercial and military airplanes to cross Western Canada and use Canadian airports in connection with the proposed air service from the U.S. to the Orient and Alaska. Edmonton has one of the finest airports on the continent and it will be one of the ports of call for the new Pan American air service when it starts. There is some doubt expressed in some quarters as to what would happen should war break out between the United States and Japan. Would the airports in Canada used by American airplanes in times of peace be questioned by the Japanese? It is indicated, however, that the question of neutrality in case of war is being thoroughly canvassed and that the Canadian government will not enter any permanent agreement that will endanger the peace and goodwill of Canada with other countries. No permanent agreement has been reached as yet.

A carload of work horses for use in Newfoundland lumber woods is being purchased in Alberta by a buyer from Deer Lake, Newfoundland. A good type of horse weighing around 1,600 pounds is wanted, according to word received here from Clive, where the buyer has been. The average price paid is said to be around $120 per ton.

A report from Lloydminster states that a shipment of rattlesnakes has been sent from that locality to China. The snakes are wanted for medicinal purposes. A medicine for the cure of rheumatism is extracted from them. The man who shipped them has an order for 200, for which he is being paid well, he says.

For the first eight months of 1934, the shipments of live stock from Western to Eastern Canada, namely 50,782 cattle, 638 calves and 45,222 sheep, showed increases in comparison with 1933 of 17,224 cattle, 429 calves and 10,739 sheep. Hogs which totalled 146,123, showed a decrease of 68,809.

Mr. C. Carter Appointed Church Christ Pastor

Announcement is made that Mr. Cliff Carter has been appointed Pastor of the Church of Christ in Hanna, succeeding Mr. G. Hayden Stewart, who left here some weeks ago to accept an appointment in Winnipeg. Mr. Carter, who is well and favorably known to a great many friends in this district, has taken a keen interest in church work for many years. For a lengthy term he studied in Chicago, and has been unceasing in his support of various church activities. Coupled with the above announcement it is intimated that a Young Peoples meeting will be held every Wednesday evening at 8.

Mr. Carter is well known in this district, having lived with his parents at Kimmundey, for a number of years.

Proposed Policy Re M. Dists.

The course suggested by the Department of Municipal Affairs was considered by it to be the only one possible under the present statutes, whereby the Department would have sufficient control of municipal expenditures to make guarantees, and where by the people of the districts could retain some measure of local autonomy. It is pointed out that the present Act does not permit the appointment of an official administrator as long as councils remain officially in control.

It is proposed that the councils retire and that the Department appoint in official administrator, naming the present Reeve in each district to act with this administrator as an advisor, thus retaining continuity of present policy as far as possible. In addition to the Reeve, the full council will act as an advisory committee to the administrator until the end of the year, when a small committee of two will be nominated and elected by the ratepayers to take the place of the council and act with the Reeve.

The Reeve and Committee men will be remunerated for their services. The arrangement will be in force until the close of 1935 when the whole question will be discussed anew in the light of the conditions at that time.

In the meantime it is suggested that the statutes be amended to provide for the appointment of a controller to act along with municipal councils; and that the possibility of realigning the area into larger units be fully investigated. Such units may be set up during the year if advisable.

THE FEED SITUATION

There is an abundance of feed in the province for provincial needs. So far as drought areas are concerned, not much long feed will be required, but some grain will be needed. The provincial department of agriculture is buying feed at present as emergency supplies. There has been a good production of greenfeed in northern districts, and the south-western part of the province has produced considerable alfalfa. Alfalfa production in the irrigated districts was somewhat lower than usual. Hay is plentiful, the haying districts suffering from wet weather and other handicaps. There will be plenty of low-grade wheat and barley for use as feed. Prices are higher than for some time for all feeds, and there is good demand, not only from the domestic market, but from the United States, where it is possible a market will be found for the Alberta surplus. There is a much shorter supply of seed grain than usual, but an abundance of good seed oats will be available from northern districts. Good prices are being quoted.

Sending automobiles to jail instead of their driver is a good idea. You don't have to feed jailed automobiles.

TOO MANY FACTIONS

The trouble with co-operation in Canada is, "too many factions" according to Sir William Doolley, president of the English Co-operative Wholesale Society, speaking in Toronto last week. He said that there are producers calling themselves co-operators and consumers calling themselves co-operators, and if the aim of the producers is to get the best price and that of consumers to obtain the lowest price, where are you to be? he asked. Sir William saw no success for co-operation in Canada until the channel between production and consumption should be bridged.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping
Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people "round 40" think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot... "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all.

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Made in Canada.

Only One Drawback

Johannesburg People Do Not Like Cattle Roaming On Streets

Johannesburg, it is almost superfluous to remark, is a very progressive city. We knew this for ourselves and even if we didn't, there are plenty of tactful and discerning visitors who come here and tell us so. So rapid, in fact, is our advance, that Professor Coulter, of the U.S.A. was made to feel like Rip Van Winkle on revisiting us after only five years' absence. We have, he tells us, "an integrated communal machine, a group co-operating various agencies, a long-time plan, a city social-conscious, dynamically interested, with a clear-cut purpose." He might have added that we also have a system which permits horned cattle to run loose in the principal streets. Very few modern cities can say the same.—Johannesburg Times.

But the bushmaster is slowly going the way of his three bushmaster predecessors in the last 35 years at the zoo. He won't eat, he hasn't taken a morsel since he was caught. The freshly killed rats which Dr. Ditmars hopefully tossed into him every two or three days are spurned. So is every other choice tid-bit on the menu for bushmasters.

Will Take Referendum

To Test Great Britain's Traditional Policy Of Splendid Isolation

"Great Britain's will for or against her traditional policy of splendid isolation" shortly will be tested by a thorough referendum conducted by the League of Nations council.

Each citizen will be invited to answer five questions as follows:

Should Great Britain remain a member of the League of Nations?

Are you in favor of a general reduction of armaments by international agreement?

Are you in favor of general abolition of national air forces by international agreement?

Ought the manufacture and sale of armaments for private profit to be banned by international agreement?

If one nation is resolved to attack another, do you believe that the other powers ought to force that nation to renounce its designs, either by non-military economic measures, or, if needs be, by military measures?

The Daily Express some time ago conducted a straw vote, the outcome of which supported the newspaper's stand favoring a British isolationist policy.

The present semi-official referendum is intended to prove the contrary. Its backers contend that the results of the other vote were inconclusive because the questions were put in a very elementary fashion.

THE TENDERFOOT

By

GEORGE B. HODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail",
"The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to go see what was happening for himself—not as Gerald Keene, half owner of the Hour-Glass Ranch, but as Duro Stone, tenderfoot in a Montgomery Ward wilderness outfit.

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector (H) now is returning to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of the rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore. He sees Broken Spur men rustling flour-glass cattle and protests.

Joe Carr's daughter, Edith, repulses Dustin when he wished to make her acquaintance, saying when she walked with a man, it would not be with a squaw man. He plans revenge, but has had no opportunity so far. Affairs on the ranch going from bad to worse, Joe Carr takes to drink.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER III.—Continued

Somewhere the Broken Spur always found a market. Broken Spur cattle were shipped periodically to California to be fattened to bring the highest prices in a falling market while the Hour-glass could not pay its freight bills for such shipments. Poor old Joe Carr saw the Hour-glass go to pieces under his once able hands and he sought in vain for the reason. That suit over Soda Springs was the last straw.

"I know damned well they've been robbing us deaf, dumb and blind," he snapped to big Crewe, his foreman. "But I can't prove it. What can I do?"

"There's nothin' I can do, Frank."

"Huh. You might try leavin' the cork in that whisky bottle for a change," said Crewe, who was not inaptly named Frank. Carr cursed him and on that occasion left the cork in the bottle. . . . for an hour.

"I wish to God I could get track of that young fellow Gerald Keene," went on Carr fretfully. "You know how old Peter Vinton left the Hour-glass. Half to me and half to him and if one of us dies, the other gets the half of the one who dies. Funny way to leave a ranch. Nobody can find young Keene. Nobody knows his address. I've been rummaging in the red ink right along for borrowin' cash to finance the Hour-glass for the last few years. I've been doin' it on my own responsibility. It ain't right that he shouldn't pay his share. . . ."

"Listen here, Joe. . . . Crewe wheeled on his employer. "I've known you for a lifetime as men count years. As a cattle-man nobody can teach you a thing about the business. As a distiller you ain't much but as a steady consumer of bottled goods you ought to have a gold medal. No use blinkin' facts that're right face up on the table. It's liquor that's helped put the ranch in the red. . . ."

"Red liquor. It might have happened anyhow but I know it helped a bad matter to git worse. It's time somebody's tellin' you. . . ."

Carr began a futile protest but Crewe cut him short.

"You'd never have got into that card game in the Silver Dollar but for red liquor. That game cost you ten thousand and you know it. You'd never have tried runnin' a horse for the Coahuila Sweepstakes if you hadn't been so full you couldn't hit the ground with your hat. Then you made a bet you'd win it and when you sobered up you wouldn't even hedge. A cattlemen's got no business runnin' a horse except at the end of his rope. You know it when you're sober, too. That's what makes me so damned hot."

"I was tryin' to win back what I'd lost," said Carr.

"Hell, man! I know that. A fat chance you had of winnin'. Three strangers actin' in the game an' you with the only roll in town with Spike Goddard sittin' in the game and a bar mirror behind you that you never even saw till too late. Man, you were askin' for trouble."

"Well, I got it all right at that. Listen here, Frank. Is there any way I can locate this man Gerald Keene? Can't you think of some way?"

"Simon Burwell of the Drovers Bank in Cato handled the ranch's business didn't he? Better write to him. What's the trouble, Joe?"

"Money," said Carr hoarsely. "I need money, Frank, and that's a fact."

"Can't you borrow enough at the Seco bank to tide you over? Old Pegram, the president there, ought to help you."

"Hell, man! It's old Teehouse Pegram I want to pay. They're yellin' over some back interest that I haven't been able to pay. I borrowed eleven thousand from Pegram on my personal note and I haven't been able to pay him the interest. It's about eleven hundred odd. . . ."

Crewe whistled. Eleven thousand at ten per cent. (and Texas allows a ten per cent. rate) meant that old Joe had borrowed about all he could on his share of the ranch at prevailing rates in the money market. No wonder Joe was worried. No wonder he drank a little. Crewe suddenly made up his mind that never again would he criticize a man till he knew all of both sides of the question.

"That's bad," he said evenly. "But I mean how much is the total you owe?"

Joe Carr flung up a pair of tired hands that looked suddenly old and frail.

"A damned sight more'n I've got or can raise," he said. "But if that damned 'Broken Spur' kept their thievin' hands off me I could yet come clear I think."

"Well, they won't," said Crewe. "This suit over Soda Springs shows they mean to drive you to the wall. That suit'll cost you ten thousand in court fees. If they lose they can't pay. . . . or won't. It'll all come back on us. . . . You. . . . Why not talk with Dustin over the matter?"

"Over an ivory front sight," snarled Carr. "That's the only way I'll talk to him. See if you can't find out where I can get in touch with Gerald Keene. He owns half the ranch. He might help."

But all attempts to find Gerald Keene had failed and at times old Joe doubted whether such a person really existed.

"I don't know what to make of it," growled Crewe, tramping the floor. "The man has just dropped out of sight. Nobody knows where he is or even where he proved to live."

"And to-day I was notified that old Pegram wants some definite action taken on my note," said Carr. "That means pay. How in hell can I?"

Crewe whistled again.

"It looks like they've got you by the short hairs," he growled. "If they crowd you, what'll you do?"

"Good God! What can I do?" demanded Carr miserably. He remembered old days when a mere verbal assurance that he would pay Pegram knew nothing of those days. "I'm too old to start all over again," he said wretchedly. "I can't do it, Frank. Too, there's Edith to be thought of."

There had always been Edith and old Joe Carr had never ceased to think of her though his thoughts were not always sober ones. Crewe could not help reflecting sanely that a few hours of thought about Edith at the proper time would have prevented much of the present trouble. But he only said:

—never harms
the plumbing

WHY benayed by stopped-up drains? It's so easy to keep them clear and free-running. Simply sprinkle Gillett's Pure Flake Lye down each week. Use it full strength—it will not in any way harm the enamel or plumbing. It cuts right through all clogging matter. . . . kills germs and destroys odors.

It's easy to be your own plumber this workless way, and you've no unwelcome bills to pay afterwards! Get a tin of Gillett's Lye from your grocer today. It will save you hours of unnecessary scrubbing and rubbing all over the house.

Never dissolve lye in hot water. The action of the lye itself heats the water.

FREE BOOKLET—The new edition of the Gillett's Lye Booklet gives dozens of practical hints for saving time and work with this powerful cleaner and disinfectant; also contains full directions for soap making, thorough cleansing and other uses on the farm. Address: Standard Brands Limited, Fraser Avenue & Liberty Street, Toronto, Ontario.

SOUR STOMACH, GAS

"I could not enjoy a meal, because of the bad after-effects—sour stomach, gas and indigestion. I lost weight, became nervous and slept poorly," said Mrs. Kathleen A. Kenilworth, Hamilton, Ont. "I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and my digestion was better, I enjoyed my meals, and I felt so much better."

Now!...new aid in PREVENTING Colds

Remarkable New Formula is Especially Designed for Nose and Upper Throat where most colds start

AFTER years of research on the problem of colds, Vick's Chemists have developed a remarkable new preparation—Vicks Vapo-nol. This exclusive Vicks formula is especially designed to aid the functions which Nature has provided—in the nose—to prevent colds, or to throw them off in their early stages. Used at the very first feeling of nasal irritation—just a few drops up each nostril—Vapo-nol helps to avoid many colds altogether.

Relieves Head Colds at Every Stage
If irritation has reached the stage, speedy stage—Nature's usual warning that a cold is developing—prompt use of Vapo-nol helps to throw it off in the early stages.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Vapo-nol penetrates deep into the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears away clogging mucus—brings welcome relief.

Vapo-nol is real medication—not mere "oil drops"—yet is absolutely safe for children and adults. It has been clinically tested by physicians—approved by specialists.

Easy to use, anytime or place—at home or at work. Keep a bottle always handy.

Introduces Vicks Colds-Control Plan

This new aid in preventing colds is the ideal companion to Vicks VapoRub (modern external treatment for colds). Together with certain simple rules of health, these two preparations form the new Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Records of thousands of clinical tests—made over a period of two years, and under medical supervision—indicate that Vicks Plan greatly reduced the number, duration and dangers of colds. (Full details of the Plan in each package of Vicks VapoRub and Vicks Vapo-nol.)

How to Lose Markets

The United States by virtue of its fiscal policy ably supplemented by its idiotic project of restricted production is in a fair way to lose its cotton trade with the world. A writer in Baron's weekly tells the options states about their plight and what is happening to their markets.

"In attempting to help the cotton farmer, Congress and the Federal Farm Board have ignored every phrase of the cotton producing industry except the price per pound paid to the farmer. In so doing, they have unleashed a train of consequences which is threatening the welfare and purchasing power of the whole South. For America by its own acts is losing its cotton export trade market to foreign competitors

"The United States cotton producer, who had been enjoying the most favorable position among the world's cotton producers, now holds the most favorable position, and is menaced by a character of competition he had never before encountered.

"Recently the Argentine newspapers have been urging the Chaco farmers to plant more, and still more cotton. 'The North American cotton producers are now handicapped in the world markets, to your direct advantage', is how the Argentine editors appeal to the Chaco producers.

"Not long ago Germany bought cotton from Brazil, and paid for it by selling coal to Brazil; Russia sold cotton to Europe, and bought machinery from Europe. Japan contracted to purchase 1,500,000 bales of cotton a year from India, and India contracted to buy 400,000,000 square yards of cotton cloth from Japan. Russia, finding that the capitalist countries will buy cotton against the sale of commodities Russia needs, is encouraging cotton production. Manchuria for the first time, has become an exporter of raw cotton. Egypt has removed all restrictions and control from cotton so that the cotton produced in that country may pass into consumers' hands as rapidly as possible."

Every word of this warning can be adopted to Canada and her problem of finding markets for her grain. We have been losing these markets for years and we shall continue to lose them until we face up to the necessity of doing two things: meeting the competitive price of the wheat of other nations in markets where we have to compete on even terms; and taking payment for our wheat exports in the products of other countries, even though this may include manufactured products which will enter into competition with our native manufactures.

These are hard sayings to the wheat growers or the handler of wheat who thinks we have the consoling public of the world by the neck and can make it take our product on our own terms; and to the Canadian manufacturer who believes that the home market should be his at whatever price is necessary to take things comfortably and easy for himself.

The slaughtering and meat packing industry, which might be termed an offshoot of agriculture, is one of the most important of the Canadian manufacturing industries. On the list of the leading forty industries in 1922, the latest year for which complete figures are available, it stood first in order of value of materials used and third in order of gross value of output.

SANDWICH LOAF

Remove the crust from a loaf of sandwich bread and slice it lengthwise into four equal sized slices. Butter each of these. Lay the first flat on a tray and spread with a filling made with minced meat or fish and mayonnaise. Cover with the second slice and add a layer of cheese filling. Add the third slice and a fruit and nut or vegetable filling. On top lay the fourth slice, butter side down. Press these gently together, wrap in a damp cloth and set away in a cold place until well chilled. Slice with a very sharp knife. You may have but three slices if you wish and vary the fillings by using any of your favorite sandwich spreads.

Have you learned the mystery of using new flavors, such as bay leaf? You can buy bay leaves at the grocery. Drop one into your next soup, or chicken stew. Put one into the canned tomatoes which you use for gelatin salad. Let one savor your boiled dinner. A little goes a long way; do not use too much bay leaf, and do not use it too frequently. Just a little once in a while.

THE LIVESTOCK SITUATION

Live stock generally is facing the winter season in fairly good condition. In order to avoid the necessity for shipping in feed for cattle to the dry areas, the provincial government is removing surplus cattle of the poorer type from these areas and disposing of them, the poorest of them going to packers, and the balance to farmers either for feeding or breeding purposes.

While the market prices for cattle have not yet improved to any great extent, there is indication of somewhat better conditions. Movement of Alberta's beef cattle to the British market has continued to about the same extent last year. Some 3,000 head were finished on feed lots in the central part of the province during the season under the farmer-rancher feeding contract system. Feeding plans for the coming winter season are not yet complete.

There has been a fairly good demand for horses, at increased prices. An inquiry recently received through Ottawa for a supply of horses for China is receiving attention, with probability that a number will be supplied to that market.

The hog industry is in a very satisfactory state, with good prices maintained throughout the present year thus far, and with a very marked improvement in quality of product, although the numbers marketed this far this season are somewhat less than last year. Extent of the improvement in quality is indicated by the fact that of the total marketings to the end of September, over 47 per cent were in the two top grades, compared with 38 1/2 per cent last year.

THE VASE

The container for your bouquet is like the setting of a jewel. It should be appropriate to the nature of the flowers, to the use to which they will be put and to the location in which they will be used. It should be secondary to the bouquet and never outshine it nor detract from it. Plain and simple vases are desirable. Never use a freak pattern, as a fish-shaped dish with a bouquet rising up out of the middle of its back.

Never jam a big bouquet into a narrow mouthed vase. Never overcrowd a bouquet. Never have a bouquet so stiff that it lacks grace. Never put delicately colored flowers into a strong colored vase. The Japanese have a single spray of flowers in a bowl, and this enhances the importance of each bloom. It cheapens them to crowd them or to put them into a container so decorative that it centers the attention upon itself.

The low bowl is appropriate for the dining table, so those seated about it may see one another without craning their necks. For the formal room a more severe flower arrangement may be tolerated. For the cozy room a spreading bouquet of garden flowers is delightful. For the bedroom, an intimate little bunch of dainty flowers; for the porch or sun parlor a great mass of strong colored wild flowers in rugged pottery.

The white or glass vase never detracts from the bouquet, and the glass container has the added advantage that the foliage may be seen through it. A bouquet set in front of a mirror seems to be doubly gorgeous set against a figured wall paper, the beauty of the bouquet is somewhat lost. Plain backgrounds are best. Sometimes a black velvet panel is hung where a bouquet may appropriately be placed in front of it.

CARE OF MILK

Milk, that valuable protective food which safeguards the life and health of most babies, growing children and adults, spoils very easily. This is because bacteria appreciate its food value even more than we do and they are likely to reach it out and live on or in it.

No matter how earnestly milk producers, distributors and public inspectors may try to preserve the purity of our milk for us, it is a failure unless we know how to care for it intelligently after it is delivered to our homes. As a general rule, use milk as soon as possible after it is delivered. The second rule is keep it as cool as you can until it is used.

A refrigerator with a temperature of 45 degrees is ideal. The cheap little home-made ice chest will keep it overnight. Lacking this, keep the bottle under the slow drip from the faucet or wrap it in clean wet cloths and put it in the coolest place you can find. If you cannot keep it otherwise, boil it, for that destroys bacteria, as well as some valuable vitamins, alas. Evaporated and condensed milk contains the same food value as fresh milk, and in some places cost less.

Milk should be kept in the original bottle, covered; and the bottles thoroughly washed soon after emptying. FASHIONS, FADS, FOIBLES Costly little capes and coats of silk or cotton goods are worn over summer dresses for cool evenings. Tweed and knitted wool dresses will be popular for fall dresses. The best of yarn should be used to prevent stretching, sagging and fading. Unless the knitting is done skillfully, you will be disappointed. Better have some lessons or the help of an expert. Rough yarns give a tweed-like appearance to knitted dresses.

Colors for Fall will be much the same as usual; black, which is always good; seal brown, another favorite; soft green; navy and orange.

The neckline is an important factor in the season's styles. We still insist on keeping our throats bundled, whether with large bows, drapery, a high collar, the ascot scarf, or a fitted blouse. There are a few square and V-shaped necks which do not pile the dry goods under the chin.

Slim lines will continue, in dresses and coats. The inverted pleat gives room for walking and is also slenderizing. Fabrics will be elegant; silks, tains, and velvets. There is a new alpaca which is soft and pliable.

EARNING BY COOKING

The woman who loves cooking, and who is trained at it, can make a nice income by utilizing her home kitchen as a base of profit-making. As they say in the west-ads, "none other need apply." The woman who does not know the art of cooking, from A to Z had better turn to other avenues of earning, for the competition is too great to be met by any but experts.

Baking, canning, the making of jams, jellies, cottage cheese, meat loaf, salads, baked beans, sandwiches, and candies and the packing of lunches—these and many other achievements may bring in the check to the woman who is skilled in producing tempting viands. She may engage regular customers by telephone, sell by a house to house canvass, or turn her room of her home into a food shop.

BUYING LABOR SAVERS

When considering the purchase of labor saving machinery, study the various types and do not buy just what you happen to see in a store window or what an agent offers you. Know what there is and get what will best suit your need.

Ask yourself these questions before you invest: Will it be used enough to justify the cost? How much care will be required to keep it in order? Will it really save time and energy? Will it make some especially disagreeable task less unpleasant? A few simple and well chosen implements are likely to give better satisfaction than a large collection of those which are bought haphazard.
